To Keep the Hair Curly.

"In case the government weather breeder continues to give us this horrid, sticky weather that would take the kink out of a poodle's hair," said a clever girl, "I'll tell you a secret which will keep the curl in the most hopelessly straight hair. But it involves a return to the barbaric curl paper, I warn you. Well, first of all the hair must be thoroughly shampooed, and, by the way, this should not be done oftener than once in three weeks, even in summer. It not only injures woman's crowning glory, but also makes it unmanageable. At night, when retiring, that part of the hair which is worn waved or curled should be wet in water in which a little borax has been dissolved, and then rolled up on curl papers. Care should be taken not to have the hair too wet. Next morning there is a natural-looking, light, dry, fluffy curl in the hair which defies even this sticky, muggy, curi-destructive weather. Even this, with the intense heat, will not change the curls into strings before it is time to confine them into papers again."

Dog Taxes in Germany.

Dog taxes are giving trouble to German military men. The Herzog Karl of Mecklenburg-Strelitz infantry regiment No. 43 enjoys the distinction of being the only regiment in the German army whose bass drum is drawn in a little cart by dogs. It won the honor by its gallantry in the war of 1866 against Austria, when it captured the bass drum and cart of an Austrian regiment. It refused to pay a tax on the dogs at Konigsberg on the ground that they were useful and not a luxury, but was compelled to pay, as the law gives full power to tax all dogs to the local authorities.
